

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An inspection system includes a source for emitting a light beam, a sensor for capturing images of a target area, and an optical system for splitting the light beam into a plurality of paths for illuminating the target area. The optical system arranged such that a 2D image and a 3D image of the target area have the same optical path length from the target area to the sensor.